"Political Contributions by Corporations and Trusts Mean Corruption-They Cannot Be Honest."

REPUBLIC SPECIAL

Paopus, N. Y., Oct. 24.-From the veranda of his residence, at Rosemount, this afternoon, Judge Parker made the direct charge that the heads of trusts and corporations had furnished great sums of money to the Republican National Committee to secure "floaters" in the doubtful States for the Republican party.

Among the clubs represented in the visiting delegation were the Parker Inde-pendent clubs of New York, the Constitution Club, the Business Men's Parker and Davis clubs of New York and the Dutch-

After the nominee had welcomed his visitors, William Temple Emmet of the Constitution Club addressed him on behalf of the delegation. "If you are elected Fresident," said Mr. Emmet, "you will use the powers which the Constitution intrusts to you for the henefit of the recoile use the powers which the Constitution in-trusts to you for the benefit of the people and not for the benefit of the favored few. Cortelyon, the President's private secretary, was appointed Secretary of Commerce and Lebor.

seeking governmental aid in their commercial ventures.

"At the instance of the President he was made chairman of the Republican National Committee, of which he was not a member, with the understanding that, as soon as his work in that capacity was over, he would return to the Cabinet in the event of Mr. Roosevelt's election.

"As chairman of the Republican Committee Mr. Cortelyou has been enabled to collect a great campaign fund. That he acquired very special knowledge of the needs and resources of his contributors while at the head of his department there can be little doubt, though he has not made his knowledge public, as he should have done."

reply to the speaker, Judge Parker

'Many years have passed since my ac "Many years have passed since my active participation in politics. In the meantime a startling change has taken place in the method of conducting campaigns, a change not for the better, but for the worse; a change that has introduced debasing and corrupt methods, which threaten the integrity of our Government, leaving it, perhaps, a Republic in form, but not a Republic in substance, no longer a government of the people, by the people, for the people, but a Government whose officers are practically chosen by a handful of corporate managers, who levy upon the assets of the stockholders whom they represent such sums of money as they deem requisite to place the conduct of the Government in such hands as they consider best for their private interests. "Some of the enterprises which have unduly thrived through favoritism, and which have been permitted by statute to indirectly levy tribute on the people, have, in the course of time, become so rich and strong that they can and do contribute vast sums when it is made clear that it will be an advantage to them, and they contribute upon the promise, direct or implied that they shall be permitted to continue to tax the people for their own benefit." tive participation in politics. In the mean-

"Upon such promises contributions have been not infrequently made in such large measure as to induce and procure colonisation, repeating and bribery in doubtful States.

"This has built up a class of voters known to local leaders as "floaters," a class so numerous that party canvassers allot to them, in their canvas books, a separate column, headed with that name. This condition is recognized by party workers local, State and national.

Mr. Becker then entered into partnership with his former employer, W. H. Little, under the firm name of Little, Becker & Co. Since that time until his death Mr. Becker was a member of the firm. He was 57 years old when he died.

Mr. Becker was a member of both the local and national order of Typothetas and was at one time the president of the local organization. He was also a member of the Woodmen of the World and of the Royal Arcanum.

aid of the tariff secure their profits by the exercise of monopolies. Hence their offloers are opposed to the enforcement of the law as against them.

encouraged by taunts and shouts of older boys employed in the Peters Shoe Company at Eleventh and Monroe streets.

While deeply affected over the death of their son, the parents harbor, no ill will toward the boy in prison, and yesterday they even extended sympathy to the widowed mother whose son is charged with causing another's death.

Late yesterday afternoon the police, unwilling to subject the lad to the environment of the confirmed criminal, considerately decided to remove him to the Four Courts and place him in the matron's charge until the formality of an investigation is made, after which the boy probably will be released.

"Erv wanted to fight me and I did not want to, until the big fellows told me I was a coward and wouldn't fight," said young Stiens at the Four Courts last night. The lad is well built for his ago. He is intelligent, frank and honest. His large blue eyes are frank and he maswers every question promptly. His hair is long and blond. He talks quelty and did not betray any emotion until asked about his parents, when he wept silently for a few moments, and then, controlling himself, tried to smile.

"My father is dead, and Bernard and I take care of our mother as best we can," continued the boy. "I am sorry the fight took place, but I could not get out of it and had to fight. When I heard that Erv was sick, I went to his house, but when I got there they told me he was dead.

SHOOK HANDS AFTER FIGHT.

"It was after work Saturday. My brother and I had put our coats on and were been doing for some time to avoid a fight been doing for some time to avoid a fight with Erv. When we got outside, a crowd of the boys in the shop was there. Erv was in the center. He came toward me, and I knew that I had to fight him. We both pulled off our coats, and he gave his coat to John Drake, and I threw mine to my brother as Erv came for me. I swing once and missed, but he landed on my eye and blacked it. When he came at me again I struck him on the side of the head.

"Then someone shouted 'Jiggers,' and we parted and met on the next corner. We shook hands and walked part of the way home together. He told me that he had given me a black eye, and I said, 'Well, we are square, Erv, I got in on your ear,' went after the other boy and brought him to the station."

Young Schultze walked to his home with several of the other boys. Once on the way home he complained of feeling dizzy. When he reached home he told his mother that he was suffering from a pain in his head, and, as he showed signs of illness she sent for Doctor Carl Orth of No. 1437 Penrose street. The physician found that the lad was suffering from a hemorrhage of the brain. He expressed some doubts as to the certainty that a blow from Steins's puny fist could have caused the injury at the time. Several calls were made, but the sick lad continued to grow worse and died Sunday morning.

In his last words, it is said, he did not blame Stiens, as it was a fair fight.

There was much gloom in the shop yesterday, especially among the larger boys who had goaded the yourgsters on to hattle. Patrolmen Holleran investigated the case, and as witnesses secured George Becker of No. 2240 North Market street; William Luebbert of No. 1940 Hebert street; William Luebbert of No. 1940 Hebert street; John Drake, who held the dead boy's coat, of No. 4311 Blair avenue, and the imprisoned boy's brother, Bernard, who acted as his brother's second.

New York, Oct. 24.-With the audience on its feet, cheering Mrs. Gilbert and singing as one chorus, "Auld Lang Syne," the curtain went down at Lyceum Theater to-night on the first performance of "Granny," the new play written for Mrs. "Granny," the new play written for Mrs. Gilbert by Clyde Fitch. In every act the play was frequently interrupted with cheers and applause. The ovation accorded Mrs. Gilbert upon her first entrance was almost overwhelming and the venerable old lady was so affected that it was several minutes before she recovered sufficiently to go on with her lines.

At the end of the performance Mrs. Gilbert recited an epilogue written for her. and this was the signal for the noisy tribute, the like of which is rarely witnessed.

Samuel Newhouse, Colorado's New Croesus, Plans to Contruct Model Town.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Denver, Colo., Oct. M .- Samuel Newformerly of Colorado and now a Illah mine operator, has been enriched beyond the wildest dreams of his boyhood days by the exposure of great bodies of ore in the Cactus mine in Southeast ern Utah.

To-day ere valued at $54.000,000 is ready to be broken for a smelter, which the American Smelting and Redning Company will build at Salt Lake. The Smelter Trust has signed contracts for the treatment of $40,000,000 worth of ore from the mine.

With the acquisition of great wealth, Mr. Newhouse has evolved many sociolog-ical plans. The town of Newhouse will be built near the mine in a beautiful valley surrounded by scenes of grandeur. Modern houses of brick and stone will be built, each with a lot 200x500 feet, making gardens and lawns possible, and prizes will be given for the best. He will give the town a library and amusement feature. Miners will receive prizes for good work and bright ideas of practical value. Mr. Newhouse has purchased the famous Wah Wah springs, which will supply his model town with water.

The committee is at work on appeals from the other exhibitors in the Palace of Manufactures, and Minn H. Hulbert, Chief of the Department, is in daily conference with the committee.

In a communication directed to the chiefs of the departments by John H. Mc-Gibbons, secretary of the Committee on Appeals, a request is made of the chiefs that they notify all exhibitors to refrain from making public announcement of any award until they receive final notification from the Exposition Company that such an award has been finally passed upon by the committee in charge of this work.

COUNCIL OF WOMEN MEETS AT THE FAIR TO-MORROW.

Session Is Postponed From To-Day on Account of the Nonarrival of the President.

On account of the nonarrival of Mrs. Mary Wright Sewell of Indianapolis, Ind., honorary president of the International Council of Women, the first meeting of the council, which was set for this morning, has been postponed until to-morrow at 9 a.m. in the Hall of Congresses. Mrs. Sewell was detained on business connected with the organization.

According to the present programme of the council only one session will be held in St. Louis. At the meeting Wednesday Mrs. Sewell will preside and deliver the president's address.

Several of the foreign representatives who attended the annual session of the International Council in Berlin last summer will take part in the programme. Among these are Countess d'Haussenville of Berlin and Baroness von Suttner, also of Germany.

Owing to the fact that the National Council is to hold its triennial meeting in February, no joint meeting of the national and international councils will be held in St. Louis, as was originally planned.

The subject-matter for discussion at the meeting to-morrow is the higher education and the legal rights of women. As a part of the programme for the entertainment of the members, the Woman's Relief Corps, Department of Missouri, of which Miss Carrie I. Sparling is the local representative, will give a reception to Mrs. Sewell and the visiting members of both the national and the international councils, in the Missouri building, from 3 to 5 p. m. to-morrow. According to the present programme of Incidentally, he expressed the deep cha-grin and disgust of the Missouri Com-mission at the news that the State's su-perb building was considered worthy of only a rilver medal by the jury.

President Francis assured him that the news was a great surprise to the Expo-nition officials. Mr. Bonfoey was told, how-ever, that the award was the work of the jury, and that a protest to them was the only recourse. Mr. Bonfoey later called on Mr. Taylor and expressed the regret of the commission at the inadequate award made for his architectural creation.
